The NEW Girl Scout Leadership Experience

WHY GIRL SCOUTS?

From founding libraries in America’s heartland to establishing free medical clinics in India, each year 2.6 million Girl Scouts take the lead in bettering their communities and the world. Girl leaders have been at the heart of Girl Scouts since its founding in 1912, when Juliette Gordon Low recognized that developing girls’ leadership abilities was critical for ensuring they would be the change-makers of the future.

Since Low’s time, the world has changed dramatically. Social, cultural, and economic shifts that once took shape over a generation or more are now rapid and have a global impact. This ever more complex and uncertain world clearly requires a new kind of leader – one who values diversity, inclusion, and collaboration and is committed to improving neighborhoods, communities, and the world.

“In Girl Scouts, leadership isn’t just about building future leaders – it’s about building girl leaders for today.”

*Kathy Cloninger, CEO
Girl Scouts of the USA*
